Teresa Dixon

From one side of Bass Strait to the other, Teresa Dixon writes and plays gritty alt country-folk songs of love, loss & hope.

Dixon's new self-produced album 'Way Down South', recorded by Jethro Pickett right on the Huon River, tells stories of the healing power of nature, place and reflection with some self-deprecating songs about drinking and failed love thrown into the mix. It showcases her gravelly, honest voice and multi-instrumental talents on banjo and guitar.
